Uranium alliance

ONE of the largest drilling programs to identify early signs of commercial uranium deposits in SA's far west has been announced by Adelaide-based Southern Gold.

The program will be carried out jointly by Southern Gold and its joint venture partner, Hindmarsh Resources, close to the Challenger gold mine in the Gawler Craton.

"The program will test for uranium mineralisation in tertiary paleochannels within the tenements," Southern Gold managing director Stephen Biggins said.

The program is expected to take several months to complete.
